National Emergency Communications Plan Webinar

CISA will host a webinar on July 24th entitled, “Leveraging Survey Data for Collaborative Initiatives and National Planning.” This webinar will introduce participants to the SAFECOM Nationwide Survey (SNS), a valuable tool for shaping national emergency communications planning. The SNS provides a comprehensive view of the current state of emergency communications across the nation and identifies areas for improvement. By leveraging insights from large national surveys like the SNS, public safety and emergency communications entities can better understand the changing dynamics of emergency communications and align their strategies with broader national goals. The NECP emphasizes the critical role of strategic teambuilding in achieving resilient, secure, and interoperable emergency communications. This webinar will highlight the vital importance of stakeholder involvement in this teambuilding effort by exploring how the SNS was designed and how its findings inform national planning and support evidence-based decision-making for public safety leaders across the nation. For more information about the NECP webinar series, including a link to attend the webinar, on CISA’s website here: <https://www.cisa.gov/necp-webinars>.
